Pupil Passport - Blue Coat Church of England School and Music College Date: 13/8/2021 Teacher: Mr Neil Phipps

About the Student

Scooby Doo is a likeable dog who is always eager to get involved. Sometimes his enthusiasm for getting involved makes him quick to make mistakes and rush work.

Scooby has a diagnosis of ADHD and dyspraxia. This means that he is full of energy which can be utilised by the classroom teacher, but he is also very clumsy and disorganised. He has also had speech and language support as English is not his first language and his vocabulary is limited.

He is a popular character who works well in a team and has a strong attachment to his best friend.

Key Classroom Strategies

Allocate him a job or role in class to help with his movement, such as giving out resources. Be aware however that his clumsy nature means he should not have dangerous equipment near him.

Offer him rewards and encouragement at every opportunity - he loves snacks.

Seat him near a positive role model - sitting him next to his friend will keep him focused.

Chunk work into manageable steps one at a time, and provide clear timings which you remind him of regularly.

Provide opportunities to develop spoken language but ask simple questions.

Strengths and Interests

Scooby is a loyal friend who enjoys getting stuck into activities.

He is a keen murder mystery fan, enjoying puzzles.

He also loves getting dressed up and regularly goes on fancy dress expeditions with his friends.

Other information which may help

Scooby has had intervention with speech and language and specialist behavioural teachers at primary school.

He is currently participating in Flash Academy intervention program to develop his English skills.

In the Student's Own Words...

Scooby Dooby Doo!

4 For All

The 4 For All are elements which are expected to be emphasised in lessons and should be evident to learners. These techniques benefit all students but particularly those with SEND.

- Present key words at the start of a Unit and get students to stick them in.
- Ask students to make a glossary at the back of their books and write kev words and definitions as they appear.
- Have kev words on display through each lesson so they can be easily referred to by staff and students.
- Use settlers to pre-teach and over-teach key vocabulary.
- Ask students to use key words in sentences as part of a plenary or exit ticket exercise.
- Explicitly talk about key words and reward students for using them.

- Use a classroom timer to ensure that all activities are paced appropriately.
- Use a timer at the start of the lesson so students know as they enter how long they have to complete the settler.
- Explicitly talk about the clock in the room so students don't need to have to work it out themselves.
- · Give students with notional or official access arrangements extra time - ask all students to change pen colour at the end of normal time.
- Write start and end time for assessments/work onto the board.
- Ensure that the time you say is the time you give, and provide regular reminders of how long is left.
- Ensure activities in the lesson are varied so pace is kept high.

CHECK

Z

CHUNK

- Give no more than two instructions at a time and check these are done before moving onto the next ones.
- Provide information about the lesson journey or 'now and next' so students know where they are in the lesson.
- Keep pace high and activities moving.
- Group key information and lesson elements together and be explicit about what is happening.
- Check in with students at the start of a task and then midway through to ensure understanding.
- Ask a student to repeat the instructions to the class before starting, and then ask individuals to tell you what they are doing.

- Use simple icons consistently to represent the type of activity.
- Display an image of the resource students need to refer to.
- Use body language cues to emphasise instructions, eg fingers on lips.
- Increase use of images with text for EAL students and those with low literacy.
- Use pictures to engage students, add information or illustrate a point.
